The blue filter did not remove arsenic from the river water during the controlled trial. The treatment did not reduce contamination below the laboratory reporting limit. Investigators did not recommend deploying the filter in every village before the rainy season.